

So, at 1st Advantage, we really believe in supporting our community. It started nine years ago, and we really decided hey, we want to set ourselves apart from competition, and we really want to support our community. The awesome part is that our employees are the ones who thought of the idea. We had a group that got together thinking about 'how can we give back?'. And we know a lot of competitors do different things, but no one was really having this sort of singular day that we all do something together. This day is really about them coming together to support that effort and to support the charities. But it's also about them having a chance to bond as a team.

For 1st AIDE Day we partnered with many organizations such as the Food Bank, SPCA, Hearts of Hope as well as CHKD and many more. I think all of it coming together really, it's it's an incredible impact on the community.

It means so much to us the time that they take to put these together and not just to me, but to the kids that actually get to receive them.

It really is something that's that's priceless to our hospital.

I'm astounded at what 1st Advantage does it's it's extraordinary to think that a banking institution has such a such an outreach of caring.

This relationship, their donation, their generosity helps make for a happier and healthier family in our community.

It's really about the people that make the difference and what ya'll have done today and all the gifts and all the hard work, who that goes to, and so what we have a is special group. We have 16 children here to collect their bikes from the local boys and girls club, so take a look come on in.
